*A Legacy of Hope.
A Legacy of Love.*

"It made me feel good, and I really love children. I always admired St. Amant. I always believed in what they did. I got so much out of my volunteer experience and I thought, if I ever have a chance I'm going to give them a donation".

On Mable's 85th birthday, she received colorful paper butterflies from her grandchildren and great grandchildren. These butterflies joyously announced a special gift from her children to the St. Amant Foundation's Wings of Hope campaign.

Mable visited the garden at St. Amant, and upon seeing her butterfly, decided that she too wanted to make a special gift to St. Amant. After speaking to her financial advisor and the staff of the St. Amant Foundation, she found out that making a gift was not difficult at all.

"It was easy; I really didn't have to do anything. My advisor took care of it all."

Many people share a story similar to Mable's, whose family believes in the tradition of caring for others in our community. A Legacy Gift touches the hearts and lives of children and adults with developmental disabilities today and builds their hopes and dreams for tomorrow.

Giving is easy. Meet Mable, who for over 20 years volunteered her time to care from children and teens at St. Amant, all the while raising eight children of her own. Describing what propelled her to volunteer for all those years, she said:

Mable with her birthday butterflies made for her by her grandchildren.
